

Most important observations for Low Earth Orbit Satellite Drag

Coincident measurements of magnetic field perturbations, electric field and particle fluxes in multiple orbit planes and at multiple altitudes

Measurements of neutral density (or at least accelerometer data)

Measurements of neutral winds.

Commercial or military spacecraft could incorporate space weather sensors.